

JOB OFFER

Date: 27/09/2022

PRINCIPAL INVESTIGATOR: Ana Ortega Molina

SCIENTIFIC PROGRAM: Interactions with the environment/Immune system development and function Department

JOB OFFER: Lab manager/ Research assistant

PROJECT TITLE:

Targeting metabolic dependencies in high grade b cell lymphomas

PROJECT DESCRIPTION:

My lab in the Department of Immune System development and Function at CBMSO is seeking highly motivated and talented candidates for a fully funded Lab Manager/Research assistant position starting November/December 2022 with at least 4 years of experience in a molecular biology/cancer lab.

DURATION:

Full-time position: 2years with the possibility of extension

REQUIREMENTS, EXPERIENCE AND ACADEMIC QUALIFICATIONS:

Candidates should hold a Degree, Master and PhD in Biomedical or Biochemical disciplines (Biology, Biochemistry, Biomedicine, Biotechnology, etc.). Experience Required: Mammalian cell culture; basic molecular biology techniques (PCR and molecular cloning, protein analyses, Crispr-Cas9 screens); next-gen sequencing (library preparation and basic analyses); and flow cytometry, including sample preparation and analyses; work with mice (Animal Experimentation functions B and C will be required). Bioinformatic tools. Knowledge in Confocal Microscopy will be very positively evaluated. Immunity/lymphoma, epigenetic, metabolism backgrounds are desirable.

CONTACT:

aortega@cbm.csic.es

DEADLINE:

20/10/2022

OTHER INFORMATION:

Candidates should email an application form to Dr. Ortega-Molina containing CV and a short cover letter describing your expertise and research interest.